

UASD COMMUNITY CONNECTIONS

PARENT/COMMUNITY SESSIONS

When students with disabilities need supports and services from school and other community service providers (mental/behavioral health, juvenile probation, drug and alcohol, etc.) collaboration is often beneficial. Interagency teams work together to identify needs, as well as resources. This team develops an action plan that will support student learning. An interagency team is made up of educators, the family and the student, when appropriate, as well as community agency staff who are providing services or could provide services to the student. This team is focused on a specific student's needs and helping support student success.

Parents, students, teachers, community members, and interested volunteers are cordially invited to attend the presentation.
